

Geography

Using the knowledge organiser below, complete a project answering the key question
‘In what ways does French culture differ from British?’

Within this project, display the relevant information in different ways: brochure, explanation text (how to make snail pate!), postcards in role as people holidaying in France, information texts about places of interest in France and England.

More information will be needed, so use the internet if you have access to it to find out lots more!

Once completed, they can be posted or dropped into the office and we will mark and send back any completed projects.

Key Question — In what ways does French culture differ from British?

Where in the world is it?

French Culture

Architecture	Artistic styles of architecture can be seen across France. Gothic, Romanesque Rococo and Neoclassic influences can be seen in many churches and other public buildings.
Art	Art is everywhere in France — particularly in Paris and other major cities — Many of history's most renowned artists, including Claude Monet, Edgar Degas, and Camille Pissarro, sought inspiration in Paris, and gave rise to the Impressionism movement. The Louvre Museum in Paris is among the world's largest museums and is home to many famous works of art, including the Mona Lisa and Venus de Milo.
Culture	The word "culture" actually comes from France. "'Culture' derives from the same French term, which in turn derives from the Latin colere , meaning to tend to the earth and grow, cultivation and nurture."
Food & Drink	Food and wine are central to life at all levels of society, with more time being spent over meals both in terms of their preparation and the enjoyment of them, than is typical in the UK. The term 'haute cuisine' is the term used on both sides of the English Channel to describe high quality cooking following the style of French cuisine.
Fashion	The term haute couture is associated with French fashion and loosely means fancier garments that are handmade or made to order. Famous French fashion brands include: Dior, Hermes, Louis Vuitton and Chanel.
Geography	France is much bigger than the Britain but has a similar size population, therefore, outside of Paris and the major cities, the amount of open space feels much greater in France.
Values	The French believe in égalité , which means equality, and is part of the country's motto: "Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité." Many say they place a higher importance on equality than liberty and fraternity, the other two words in the motto.
